

Contemporary Issues

open access online journal for social and human sciences

Call for articles

Dear colleagues,

Contemporary Issues is a peer-reviewed scientific journal for social and human sciences published by VERN' University from Zagreb. The journal publishes original papers on contemporary research issues and topics. It focuses on plurality of methods and approaches and embraces multidisciplinary scholarship. Articles and book reviews cover subjects from the field of political sciences, sociology, modern history and other related disciplines relevant to Southeastern Europe.

The journal is published annually in the form of an open access digital publication. The Editorial Board considers only previously unpublished original papers written in the Croatian or English languages. The Editorial Board also accepts reviews of new and significant scientific books as well as brief communications on current research in the field of social and human sciences.

The journal is open to established scientists as well as young researchers. We especially encourage publishing scientific and professional papers produced as a result of cooperation between teachers and students.

Since VERN's has introduced new undergraduate university study programmes and due to the growing significance of creative industries, especially the ones related to the media and information technologies in the Covid and post-Covid world, the Editorial Board of the journal invites the submission of papers that focus on the role and the impact of creative industries on the social transformation of Croatia and Southeastern Europe. Creative industries include all forms of arts and crafts, publishing, media, film, videogames, design, advertising, museums, galleries, festivals, information technologies, etc., in other words, all those activities that draw upon human creativity, talent, imagination and innovation to produce added value.

Contemporary Issues is indexed in the following citation databases: Worldwide Political Science Abstracts, PAIS International, Social Services Abstracts, Sociological Abstracts, CEEOL, Open Archives, OAIster, and BASE.

Contemporary Issues accept articles for the next issue – god. XII., 2021. The deadline for submission is 25 June 2021. The papers should be sent via email to the journal's email address: st@vern.hr. For further information please refer to submission guidelines: <http://contemporary-issues.vern.hr/download/submission-guidelines-hr.pdf>.
